Equal Time Ruling Is A One-Way Street

After 1968, the railroad began to lose the equalizing effect of the federal subsidies which it had received since 1920. The federal government had to make a special effort to keep the railroad from going bankrupt. In 1970, the federal government created the Interstate Commerce Commission to regulate the railroad industry. The ICC was created to regulate the railroad industry, and it was the first time that the federal government had ever regulated the railroad industry. The ICC was created to regulate the railroad industry, and it was the first time that the federal government had ever regulated the railroad industry.

Based in Washington, the propaganda network claims to have planted over stations. Under the FCC ruling, these stations are supposed to provide equal time for debating propaganda, but under these federal anti-integration and anti-digest ruling, it is impossible for responsible, honest news reporters to consistently obtain such equal time.
